Fort Worth South Report

Magnolia Green - Pennsylvania Avenue L.P. planned to break ground in January on the first phase of a $37 million mixed use development on the 11-acre site bounded by Rosedale, Hemphill, Magnolia and Alston. The project vision includes a bank-anchored office building, a medical office building, residential units and first-floor retail spaces with first occupancy scheduled for February 2005. Details on the tenants of the first two new structures were to be announced in January, as well. This is one of the original urban village projects envisioned by FWS as a catalyst for redevelopment of the area. We're grateful to the Darden family for embracing the vision, and being willing to develop their property in a mixed-use form.

Rosedale - The pros and cons of four alternatives to the current plan to rebuild Rosedale as a six-lane divided boulevard will be available for review in mid-February. FWS's Board of Directors requested a review of design alternatives following the recommendations of an outside consulting team invited to assess FWS's strategic plan. The objective is to prevent the construction of a roadway that would prevent pedestrian access from, and between, new residential neighborhoods, work locations and retail outlets. The six-lane design was originally proposed in 1990 to, in part, bypass the construction of the new I-30/I-35 interchange. Circumstances have changed since this design was considered. The revitalization of the medical district now envisions significant residential development. So, many favor a modified design with two lanes each way, dedicated left-hand turn lanes at median breaks, and wider sidewalks/parkways to accommodate pedestrians. Once the construction contract is let, it will take 785 construction days to complete the road between S. Main and Forest Park Blvd.

You are invited to the annual Mistletoe Heights Potluck Supper

Tuesday, February 10, at 6:30 pm at the Lily B. Clayton cafeteria. Please bring a dish or dessert to share with your neighbors. Drinks and utensils will be provided.

A Mistletoe Heights Tale

Over the holidays at a dinner party, I chanced to meet Paul Allen of 1121 Mistletoe Drive. In the course of our conversation, I told him I walked by his house practically every day and although the architectural style was somehow familiar, I couldn't quite arrive at a conclusion as to what it was. Once he told me the history of his house, I, of course, instantly practiced the time-honored Hungarian tradition of slapping the palm of my hand smartly to my forehead and saying "Of course!". The following is the story as related to me.

During World War I, a young soldier from Fort Worth fought in France and, at the conclusion of the war, remained there for a short while and thoroughly enjoyed his stay. Upon returning to Fort Worth, he married his high school sweetheart and convinced her that she too would love France. As a result they honeymooned in the south of France and stayed for a year, both enjoying it tremendously. When they returned home (as everyone generally does), they built a duplicate of the French provincial cottage that had been their home in Provence at 1121 Mistletoe Drive where it still stands.

No wonder the style had been familiar to me; after enjoying "A Year in Provence" and "Toujours Provence" by Peter Mayle, the architectural style somehow resonated. Paul later gave me a brief tour of the house and I must say it is beautiful, from the mahogany floors to the exposed ceiling joists it is surely unlike any other home in Mistletoe Heights. An old television program, "Naked City" used to proclaim that there were "seven million stories in the Naked City"; to paraphrase that, I believe there are over 500 stories in Mistletoe Heights and this is one of them. Thank you, Paul, for sharing this story.

80th Anniversary of St. John's Episcopal Church

St. John's Episcopal Church located at 2401 College Avenue will celebrate its 80th anniversary in February with a special service and dinner on February 21, 2004. The Mass will begin at 6:00 p.m. with dinner following at the church.

Nestled in the heart of the beautiful and historic Ryan Place neighborhood, Saint John's Episcopal Church is like a perfect blend of tradition and innovation. Since its earliest beginnings as a mission of the Episcopal Diocese of Dallas, Saint John's has joyfully remained true to their beliefs, their community, and to the teachings of Jesus Christ.

The official meeting of seven families to organize Saint John's Church was held on February 7, 1924. The first services were held in a store space in the 2700 block of Lipscomb Street. Soon growth required the location be moved to 2261 College Avenue to a store located on the corner of College Avenue and West Jessamine Street, a drug store, a grocery store and a barber shop. This building is still standing today. The property at the corner of College Avenue, Elizabeth Blvd., and Page Avenue was purchased in late 1924 and building began almost immediately.

The first rector, The Reverend Ira Day Lang arrived at Saint John's on February 1, 1925. Easter of that year worship took place at the new church site, with the roof and walls still to be completed. The "little brown church" was completed in July, 1925 and consecrated February 13, 1944. Our church has grown to a property-rich collection of structures that includes a church fashioned in the style of a rural English parish and a curate's home located adjacent to the church.

Saint John's Episcopal Church is patterned after a traditional Anglican Church in England. The nave seats 250 people. Stained glass windows line the walls, and a Rose window adorns the wall of the balcony. To the left of the High Altar is our Lady Chapel. This Chapel seats approximately 25 people.

If you would like to join the parish for the anniversary service and dinner or know of former parishioners who should be included, please phone the parish office at 817-927-5341. We extend this invitation to all our friends in the Mistletoe neighborhood.

Letter from the President

Winter has arrived in Mistletoe Heights; at least we can call it winter. Oh, we will probably get an ice storm that will slow things down, but probably not as bad as the one last year that stopped everyone except the kids with ice skates.

I was thinking about our weather when I talked to my brother in Boston the other day. They have had record cold already this year. Real cold. I told him that we had been riding our bicycles in the neighborhood, and he grumbled something about running his snow blower for three hours and feeding some whale meat to the sled dogs.

Winter just gives us another reason to be thankful that we live here. But doesn't adversity build character? Do we have it too easy? Well, we don't have to worry about that because we live in old houses. We can have all the adversity we want at the time and place of our choosing by starting that restoration project we've been planning.

Actually, this is not so bad. We can have the equivalent of a light snowfall by doing a simple project like ...well, I can't think of anything simple right now; or get the feel of an Arctic winter by redoing a whole house. Like Rose Lynn and I just did.

It's all part of the charm of our neighborhood. When I meet people thinking of moving here, I assure them that they will get to know their neighbors, and will share a common situation. We will all be working on our houses. We also want to show what we have done, and see what others are doing, too. Each house is a historical artifact, but also a personal statement that has been written by everyone that has ever lived there. We have the ability to change our houses to suit ourselves while maintaining the charm that initially attracted us to them.

The real beauty of this situation is that if you have a project in mind, there is a good chance that one of your neighbors has done something similar. Great information can be had from those who have gone before, and they are usually most generous with it.

So go for that project. Get the info you need beforehand and do it. A year later you will have forgotten the hassles and headaches, and will just enjoy being in this great space that you have helped create.

See you in the neighborhood,

Jeff Gibbons

Gardening with Perennial Vegetables

For those of us that like to grow vegetables in the garden, we should not overlook the perennial vegetables for years of flavorful harvest. The humble brown roots of perennial vegetables that can be found in nursery bins in winter may not seem to be much. But, once they start growing, artichokes, asparagus, horseradish, Jerusalem artichokes and rhubarb are wonderful food plants and most are unabashedly beautiful.

In our area, the asparagus does well. Plant them from root divisions or crowns anytime during winter bare-root season. At the nursery, look for the male varieties. Males grow bigger spears (and more of them) and save you the trouble of weeding out inferior seedlings. Plants take two to three years to come into full production. To strengthen their roots and ensure good harvests in the years to come, let asparagus shoots develop into ferns the first season. Wait until the second spring to harvest a few spears. From the third spring onward, you can harvest spears over a two-month period or until new spears start to become thinner. For asparagus, dig a trench about 6 inches deep in well-amended soil. You should have a mixture of manure, garden soil and humus. Set the crowns in the trench at 15 inches apart, and cover them with 2 inches of soil. As the spears grow, add 2 inches of soil for every 2 inches of growth, barely covering the tips of the new spears. Keep doing this until the soil is mounded 4 inches above ground level. At planting, add 1 pound of 5-10-10 fertilizer per 12 ½ feet of row. In following years, mix a high-nitrogen fertilizer into the soil just before new spears appear, then again after harvest.

Happy Gardening,
Patsy Slocum

Fort Worth League of Neighborhood Associations

The Fort Worth League of Neighborhood Associations held its general meeting on January 8, 2004. Tom Richey & Jeff Gibbons were in attendance to represent Mistletoe Heights. Mayor Mike Moncrief, several members of City Council, as well as several city departmental representatives also attended. Mayor Moncrief gave a presentation on the bond package that included the history behind the proposal, the rationale for the existing package and a brief synopsis of what the package contains. City Council members present each gave a brief talk outlining their positions and rationales. This was followed by an extended question/answer session.

Briefly, the items directly affecting Mistletoe Heights are:

Proposition One: Street & Storm Sewer Improvements, will provide funding for the last step in the city's portion of SH121 Tollway-Southwest Parkway, as well as provide funding for the West Rosedale improvements from Main St. to Forest Park Blvd.

Proposition Two: Parks, Recreation, and Community Services Improvements will provide funding to replace/upgrade the playground at Newby Park.

Each of the six propositions will be subject to a Yes/No vote on February 7, 2004 with the polling place for Mistletoe Heights being Lily B. Clayton. Your Neighborhood Association officers urge you to research this proposal and exercise your right and duty to vote as you see fit on this bond proposal.

The next meeting of the FW League of Neighborhood Associations is scheduled for March 4, 2004.

"The MHA closed the fiscal year ending 10/31/2003 with a good cash position and positive cash flow for the year in anticipation of funding the MHA Historic District Guidebook in fiscal 2004. We have received major underwriting from Historic Fort Worth for the $5,000 project via $2,500 advertisement for the back cover. The association will fund the remainder of the printing costs. All other expenses have been donated by neighborhood members. In addition, the association will provide the first money toward the proposed Newby Park Pavillion with a $500 donation to the Friends of Newby Park account next month.

In December, the association funded Christmas decorations and party expenses. It will soon be time for annual dues to replenish our coffers to cover normal monthly expenses and, hopefully, more capital improvements. The wish list is long. Please support your association as you can.
